‘OUR VOICES WILL BE HEARD’

Shadowed by pandemic, Wisconsin votes in historic race

Bill Glauber, Sarah Volpenhein and Mark Johnson
Milwaukee Journal Sentinel
USA TODAY NETWORK – WISCONSIN

This was history in real-time. We'll remember how the weather was, on Election Day 2020, unseasonably warm and sunny through much of Wisconsin.

We'll remember the once-in-a-century pandemic, the fear and anxiety, the face masks and hand sanitizer.

And finally, we'll remember how for a few moments, there was a sense of normal life unfolding even as the deadly COVID-19 virus remained ever-present.

Whether they mailed in ballots weeks ago or waited until the very last moment before polls closed Tuesday, Wisconsinites turned out by the millions to have their voices heard to help decide the winner of a bitter presidential campaign.

Pandemic is top issue for voters in Wisconsin

60% surveyed before election say US going in wrong direction

Craig Gilbert Milwaukee Journal Sentinel
USA TODAY NETWORK – WISCONSIN

Almost half of Wisconsin voters say the most important issue facing the country is the coronavirus pandemic, according to AP VoteCast, a survey of more than 3,400 voters in the state conducted for The Associated Press by NORC at the University of Chicago.

Only partial and inconclusive election returns for Wisconsin were available at the time this story was written Tuesday night, but the poll of state voters provided some perspective on what was on voters' minds.

About one in four cited the economy and jobs as the most important issue.

Six in 10 Wisconsin voters say the country is headed in the wrong direction, and more than half termed the economy “not so good” or “poor.”

AP VoteCast is a wide-ranging poll of 2020 voters conducted nationally and in battleground states over the course of the eight days leading up to polls closing Tuesday night. The Wisconsin poll has a margin of error of plus or minus 2.1 percentage points.

Fault lines

Wisconsin voters were divided in this election by gender, party, race, education and urban-suburban-rural lines, according to the VoteCast poll.
